Dr. Andrew G. Wheelock

During your examination for your condition I will be using a variety of chiropractic orthopedic and neurological tests to assist in assessing your symptoms.

Some of these tests are designed to stress soft and osseous tissue. Unfortunately this may cause discomfort, or even a temporary exacerbation of your current symptoms. It is extremely rare that these standard clinical tests worsen a condition; however temporary irritation may occur for several seconds-most common, to several hours-very rare. These tests are of standard procedure for developing an accurate assessment and diagnosis for you.

I will take great care in administering these tests to make your experience as comfortable as possible.

I have read the above explanation regarding my examination. I understand that standard physical testing may exacerbate my condition. I have decided that it is in my best interest to undergo the examination by Dr. Wheelock.
